C., wide open, offering a view of a well furnished farmyard. Florence at needlework, R i Nell O Carolan L., writing in a ledger, and his wife Honor, knitting - two girls in the back-ground at needle work. Irish air The Harp that Once, c. Neil. (Closing the ledger.) Faith, and there s but little to cheer my heart when I sum up my profit and loss - rather let me say when I enter my losses - for profit there has been none this many and many a day; plenty would be the roads I can take for myself, but I m distracted intirely, when I think of the wife and childer. (Rises, comes down.) Honor. (Rising also.) Don t fret yourself, Neil, sure now it s because the farm s running out, we must cut short our enjoyment, and endeavour to meet our difficulties by denying ourselves some few comforts;...
