Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2012. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 279 x 216 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .This publication, Financial Management Support in Joint Operations (Joint Publication 1-060, provides doctrine for financial management in support of joint operations, to include multinational and interagency financial coordination considerations. Financial management (FM) complements combat power, supports strategic and operational reach, and enables endurance. Every mission requires a variety of funding sources and authorities. In addition, financial managers may provide decision support and funds control while executing the joint acquisition process with US and foreign currency. FM supports accomplishment of the joint force commander s (JFC s) mission by providing two different, but mutually supporting, core functions: resource management (RM) and finance support. RM includes providing advice and recommendations to the commander; developing command resource requirements; identifying sources of funds; determining costs; acquiring funds; distributing and controlling funds; tracking costs and obligations; capturing costs; establishing reimbursement procedures; and establishing management internal controls. Finance support includes providing financial advice and recommendations; supporting the procurement process; providing limited pay support; and providing disbursing support. The executive agent (EA) for FM normally will fund multi-Service contract costs, unique joint force operational costs, special programs, joint force headquarters (HQ) operational costs, and any other designated support costs. During joint operation planning, the subordinate JFC must designate what the EA for FM will be required to fund and what the Service components must fund, based on supported combatant commander (CCDR) guidance. Four joint FM objectives support mission accomplishment: Provide commanders with the necessary information to make resource informed decisions and then obtain mission essential funding quickly and efficiently; Reduce the impact of insufficient funding on readiness; Ensure fiscal year integrity and avoid anti-deficiency Violations; and Conduct detailed FM planning and coordinate...
